Mary Renault Prize 2018

The Principal and Fellows of St Hugh's College offer two or more prizes, worth up to £300 each, for essays on classical reception or influence submitted by pupils who, at the closing date, have been in the Sixth Form of any school or college for a period of not more than two years. At least one prize will be awarded a pupil who is not studying either Latin or Greek to A-level standard.

Essay Requirements:

- Essays can be from any discipline and should be on a topic relating to the reception of classical antiquity – including Greek and Roman literature, history, political thought, philosophy, and material remains – in any period to the present; essays on reception within classical antiquity (for instance, receptions of literary or artistic works or of mythical or historical figures) are permitted.
- Essays should be between two thousand and four thousand words.
- Essays should be submitted, together with the Mary Renault Prize Cover Sheet, using the upload form on the College website:
